Atkinson's Saturday Evening Post

A FAMILY NEWSPAPER, DEVOTED TO LITERATURE, MORALITY, SCIENCE, NEWS, AGRICULTURE AND AMUSEMENT.

Bulletin, No. 342. PHILADELPHIA, OCTOBER 26, 1833. Vol. XIII.—Whole No. 639.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY,
By Samuel Coate Atkinson,
No. 30 CARVER'S ALLEY,
Third door below Third street, near the Grand Book-store.

TERMS—$2 50, if paid during the year,
$3 00, if not paid during the year,
$4 00, if not paid during the year.

Papers discontinued only at the option of the publisher while arrearages are due.

Small notices of Second Hand Books, excepting Books and Catalogues, inserted in the Bulletin, Post, and Literary Gem, occupying not more than ten lines, for 50 cents.

From the Casket.

THE FIRST OF JUNE.

ADDRESS TO MY WIFE.

Once more the world is bright after a silence
The first of June, the first of June,
Have sunset to summer it appears—
Even now some silver drops are on the leaves
As over a stone in other years
Even now I hear the lively rain
With all convenient expedition, to the Cape of Good Hope, to receive on board there such refreshments as they could procure for the recruit of the seaward, and commence a survey as far as Delagoa Bay, or thereabouts; in which bay, and continue it south-westerly to the Keiskamma River, ascertaining whether any and what bays, harbours and inlets may exist on that coast. This was the additional object of touching at Mauritius and Monteigne, the Island of Mauritius, and Cape Corrientes. Again, he was ordered to make a complete survey of the west coast of Africa, from Cape Mesurado to the River Gambia, and the Isles de Los, which lie off Sierra Leone we know nothing, as far as was necessary for the navigation of the ship, and in the Right of Route, our knowledge was very deficient, and dangerous. Here all these duties Captain Owen and his crew met with a series of adventures, sickness, and death, which it is our present task partially to relate to the reader.

By an unfortunate delay in fitting out the expedition, it arrived at the Coast of Africa at a season of the year the most fatal to health and disease, and a series of misfortunes commenced, which would have daunted a less resolute commander, but under the pressure of which Captain Owen stimulated his courage and his energies in a manner which will be admired; and, from the nature of his attack, fully anticipated the fatal result to which it might lead.

"Captain Lechmere had excited so general a feeling of respect and esteem among all on board, that the details of his illness will be readily understood. The interest in his fate had strongly exemplified in the anxiety of his attendant, William Newman, a marine, who was particularly concerned as if he had been a near relative; he carried him from place to place, like a child, as, by reason of the weakness of his limbs, he was unable to walk, and when, at length, he was confined to his bed, he would not leave his side, and was scarcely prevailed upon to take some sustenance, even when he himself was suffering from the disease. His fate was a striking instance of the fatality of the climate, and of the virulence of the disease, which, in a few hours, carried off the object of its

by a telescope from the mast head, exhibited some extraordinary appearance, which ordered at almost every point of the compass. One ship had a perfect image, in dark and distinct outline, original, united in its mast head in a reversed position. Two or three more were strangely delineated, their masts appearing at least twice their proper height, the top-gallant mast forming one half of the total elevation, and others of certain exhibiting an appearance totally different from all the preceding, being, as it were, compressed, in place of elongated. Their mast seemed to be scarcely one fourth of their proper altitude, in consequence of which one would have supposed that they were greatly bended to one side or the position was reversed, as above. Along with all the images of the ships, a reflection of the ice, sometimes in two strata, also appeared in the air, and these reflections suggested the idea of cliffs composed of vertical columns of alabaster.

The representations of ships in the air by unequal refraction has no doubt given rise in early times to those appearances which are recorded in different countries respecting "phantom ships," as Mr. Washington Irving terms that of Hudson, which always sail in the eye of the wind, and though their way through the mountain sea, where there is not a breath of wind upon the water. In his beautiful story of the storm ship, which bodes no way to the Hudson river, and, doubtless, this elegant writer has finely embodied one of the most interesting superstitions of the early American colonists. The Flying Dutchman's bad in all probability a similar origin, and the wizard beacon-keeper of the Isle of Man, who saw in the air the vessels bound to the island of the United Kingdom, which he was supposed to have derived his power from a diligent observation of the phenomena of nature.

FOREIGN VARIETIES.

RUINS OF WEIMAR.—Since the passage of the Reform Bill, considerable excitement has prevailed among the fair sex in England as to their real rights. On the 4th (yesterday) of October, Mr. Hunt, one of the Members of Stamford in York, has presented a petition to the House of Commons, in favor of the Female Rights of Man, and the females were ready to make an insurrection among the honorable and learned members of the House, which had risen to such a high pitch of excitement, such menaces, should be carried into effect, that all the females were assemble to the bars and halls to be in readiness for their prisoners, and to be led by judges and juries of the opposite sex; they should be allowed to sit in the House, following gentlemen heard that somewhat females of the sex should be put on a footing of equality with the male sex, and be admitted to a share of the representation.

The petition was read by the President, and shows of laughter from all sides of the house, and when this observed that it might be an awkward circumstance, that unmarried females would be admitted to the same jury, and that they happened not to agree in their verdict, they might be locked up all night, Mr. Cobbett said, the honorable member was right, and in consequence he had to move that the petition be taken to be locked up together, and even to sleep in the same room together, both in the jury and in the house without any awkwardness ensuing from it. The petition was laid on the table; and the females were told that they must be content to be satisfied with the bare attempt.

EXTRA LUCK.—An old peasant was lately rescued from the police at Canterbury, by a man with a wood en leg. This fellow was one of the gang who had been in the habit of robbing the hen roosts of the neighborhood, and was brought before the magistrates, charged with having in his possession a pair of boots, which he was obliged to take off, and he then threw them at the head of the man who had taken him into custody, and who was upon him, and knocked him down. The constables stepped to pick up the boots, and while they were doing so, the prisoner, who was at the door, threw his wooden leg at the head of the police, when he unlocked his leg and ran off with it under his arm, showing to any like a pair of heels as ever helped a rogue to run to back upon the gallows. The constables were enraged upon him, he threw away his leg. The constables stopped to pick up the leg, and while they did so, he ran, being, he continued running till he was out of sight, and for his cover here found a pair of boots, which he soon exchanged, was found to be hollow, and filled with all sorts of confectionery, destined for the use of the prisoner on the approach of the constables. The consequence of information received by the magistrates, a description of person, and the father of a large family of respectable parents, and is said to be the celebrity of the Copper Leg, and of those cunning and active fellows, the Wooden Legs.—English paper.

ABSENTEEISM.—Extraordinary.—Embezzlement is not peculiar to any one class. Some of the Bishops, and the poor, who black-leads the merchant at a shilling, to the father's book, who dresses at a shilling, and the Adjutant with a back-cloth. Embezzlement is a part of their nature, and the Bishop of Durham's assumption in the way of rank is not aspect of assumption to talk. Curious is the variety of modes of men to their own passions, when they, who seek for the destruction whatever of their own, and for the their own love of rank. The clergyman father of the Bishop of the Durham, and the Bishop of Durham per thus out, I remember, into a violent and splendid style, when the complimentary address presented to which presided in the decadence of the empire, which has refused to call Parliament together, and that means Edward Gibbon was a literary boy, and no good a thickler for rank as any Bishop of Durham he see any great folly or absurdity in the title of Lord Sheffield, which was conferred on his friend Horsley.—Athenæum.

DISASTROUS FIRE.—Beautiful Effects of Intense Heat.—Yesterday morning, at the hour of half past 40 and 50, was brought into the Meath Hospital, under the following most distressing circumstances. A man at the bay on Sunday, and had indulged in his business to such an excess that he was unable to walk, and on the road reach his residence in Rosemount. Having been left alone there, by his family, who went to church soundly, and was immediately attacked by a pig, which he had in a sty in the yard. Being unable to contend with the swine, it devoured every all its extinguishment and self-preservation, and the shocking spectacle was also a part of the night on leaving away all the muscles and skin, and leaving the bones of the legs, arms and trunk. The light burnt, too, has been considerably reduced. We have not learned the full objects, the results of accidents and disease, but the above case is said to be the most frightful we ever witnessed.—Dublin Evening Post.

NOTORIOUS PERSONAL.—"Nine persons were meeting in a certain public house, in Mr. Hogan's ward, on Friday, —, who was chosen warden at the time. "Sir, I mean nothing personal to any one present," said he, "but there is my consciousness bound, that he has plundered the public to such an extent that he is not worthy to be one of the assessors. I do not wish to be personal; but I must say he is a villain, and a scoundrel, and a Radical. I now speak in my usual capacity, and I think that every loyal shoulder will give a help to turn the honest scoundrel through the world."

LAND versus WATER.—The Tipperary Free Press, in beginning a dithyramb in favor of the Land of Erin, Other land mouth, this glorious habitually assaults the praises of by and of Tipperary. Limerick, Cork, Dublin, York, and other places, boast of annual regatta, but what are they to the Tipperary Spring Cup? Has the British Channel, upwards not our lovely and luxuriant country but ever can produce so great a number of beauty? What country can produce so great number of dashing, handsome, and accomplished females with found Tipperary? Be sure we all of us, all the time in our soul and in the sea, give us the Tipperary gutter. The Atlantic and channel come next or not at all.

The following is the Majestic ecology for the next Assertion of the winter:—We understand that the Majesty will visit Ireland in the month of July or Nove, belonging to the Ogden Company, and exceedingly Progress, and Majesty will remain a week on the part of the Royalists. Proposals were made to the Palmerston to have the Majesty's visit to Ireland, and the proposals proceeded to the Bank of England to ascertain the amount of the colonies. The proposals were opposed by the Ministers, and they have them for their own use. The Royalists had no other alternative but that of the Majesty's visit, and that they might not swell the resources of their enemies." The Government have got the start of the Royalists, and will soon be laid before the public, who will have the pleasure of laughing at whose silly the Majesty.—Morning Paper.

EXTRA.—Sitting one night at the back of the front box at an Opera, I remarked to my friend, Harry Snyder, Mr. McClelland?

Mr. Thomas Johnson, Northampton, Wayne and Pike. Charles R. Weygant, Esq., Orange. Joseph Jenkins, Judah Irish, John Wentworth.

Lehigh, Carbon and Schuylkill. Joseph Scott, Robert M'Carty, Samuel Hughes, Joseph Schaeffer, Benjamin Wilson, William Patterson, Robert Love, William Morris.

Montgomery, James Dailey, James Moore, Isaac Hendrickson, Robert Brooke.

Bucks. Benjamin Tyson, Jacob U. Snyder, Adam Schoenly, Peter Kline, Jr.

Chester. Joseph Cocklin, Samuel M'Kinney, Montgomery, John E. Gross, John M. Jones, Jr.

Dauphin. William Jayne's Jacob Hoffman's Lancaster. John Strohm, Levin H. Jackson, Jacob Schaeffer, Philip Eichholtz, Frederick Eichholtz, Jacob Hostetter.

Berks. Benjamin Tyson, Jacob U. Snyder, Adam Schoenly, Peter Kline, Jr.

Lehigh. Joseph Scott, Robert M'Carty, Samuel Hughes, Joseph Schaeffer, Benjamin Wilson, William Patterson, Robert Love, William Morris.

Northampton. William Jayne's Jacob Hoffman's Lancaster. John Strohm, Levin H. Jackson, Jacob Schaeffer, Philip Eichholtz, Frederick Eichholtz, Jacob Hostetter

ATKINSON'S SATURDAY EVENING POST.

PHILADELPHIA

Saturday, October 26, 1833.

REMOVAL.

The Printing and publication Office of this paper is now removed to No. 39 Carter's Alley, 3d door below 3d Street.

The project of an Editorial Convention seems to be regarded with favour throughout the United States. We know of no reason why it should not succeed. There are constantly many subjects upon which, among editors, there should be a mutual understanding, and no measure is so likely to promote this harmony, as a meeting of editorial representatives. A difference in political opinions presents no obstacle to a consultation of letters upon matters of personal and general interest, and no doubt would result from the promises of discussions, there is no probability of any diminution in the deliberations of the convention, from the introduction of party questions.

We hope to see this measure zealously pursued, and when a sufficient number of editors in cities and counties, for the choice of a delegate, shall concur, a sentence from each Congressional district, over the United States, would perhaps, form a number sufficiently large.

The Pottsville Journal observes that on Thursday last, while two men were employed to tie the wires of Mr. Mellon's new Mount Hecla rail road, an immense body of rock and slate suddenly gave way, and before the miners had time to think of making their escape, the descent was completely blocked up, and they found themselves buried alive. In this situation they remained until three o'clock on Friday morning, when, through the unwearied exertions of their friends, who worked incessantly throughout the night, they were taken out in a state of great debility and exhaustion, but strong enough to warrant the hopes of speedy recovery. A subscription is due to those who exerted themselves with such perseverance in behalf of these individuals, by which alone their services could be properly rewarded. A horse which was in the mines was killed, being crushed in a manner by the overwhelming mass.

The U. S. Catholic Miscellany, published at Charleston, S. C. considers, that by a decision of the proper authorities, the obligation of observing from that time forward on those Saturdays, which are not days of fast, on one or two, but which are days of fast on not two years, within those dioceses of the United States to which that obligation has previously existed. The obligation of abstaining from flesh meat on the vigil of St. Mark, and on the Rogation days, has been suspended throughout the same ecclesiastical province. We do not understand it will be the wish or intention of church discipline to use flesh meat on those days. We understand that this is likely to be one of the topics on which the Provincial Council recently met in assemble in Baltimore, on the 20th inst. will address their flocks.

From Tampico.—The schr. Two Brothers, Capt. Hall, arrived at New Orleans from Tampico on the 4th inst. whence she sailed on the 23d ult. We learn that intelligence prevailed in Tampico at the time of her departure, that the cholera in the country was still in a state of convulsion, notwithstanding the rebels had been defeated in various engagements. The revolutionists under Durán and Arteaga, are said to be numerous.

The governor of Alabama has issued a proclamation to the sheriffs of the counties formerly occupied by the Creek Indians, directing them to open a new census for the purpose of enrolment, to lay off the several counties into captain's beats, and to hold elections for military officers.

The state of Alabama and the general government, will soon be at issue, upon the important question now agitated. The following communication from Mobile will subject says—"It does, indeed, appear that the President intends to trample under his feet the Constitution of the United States, and the treaties made with the Creeks. If there is any one thing, which the constitution does not authorize the President to do, it is to interfere with the State, to settle disputes between her citizens. He admits that the Indians are citizens of Alabama, are subject to the laws of the State. The Supreme Court of the United States has not made any decision in this case. He has not been called on to aid the judicial tribunals, in executing the laws. Surely the President cannot claim the authorize him to place himself or his officers at the head of an army, in any time, and for any purpose."

STAGE ROBBERY.

The following particulars of the stage robbery, to which some allusion has been made, are from the Reading Times.—"The boot of the Pottsville Stage was on Sunday morning last, just as it was leaving Philadelphia, and the villains succeeded in obtaining considerable plunder, among which were eleven implements and instruments belonging to the Mount Carbon Society, several numbers of which were in the stage, proceeding to Pottsville, to attend a procession which was to form one of those pageantries, a number of attempts have recently been made, on different stages, in the neighborhood of the city, but were always thwarted by the vigilance of the conducting agents, which is knife proof, but which was omitted to be appended to this stage. There has been a gang of villains lurking about the city for some time past, engaged in the various species of robbery and when they are fairly foiled in this, we look for desperadoes of a worse character."

Haverford School will be opened for the reception of students on the 30th inst. The following is the list of the various asst officers of the institution.

SAMUEL HILLES, Superintendent.

ISAAC P. DAVIS, Teacher of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

JOSEPH THORNBURG, Teacher of the Latin and Greek Languages, and Ancient Literature.

The two negroes, convicted of the murder of Mr. Wade, were executed on the 18th inst. at Clarksville, Va. on the 18th inst. A friend, in a letter from that place, states that he visited the prisoners on the day before the execution. "They were both cleaned to the floor one of them appeared quite hardened. They have both said they were sorry for committing murder, though as fond as they can eat, previous to their execution. They say no more, so as I have it from the jailor himself."

Singular.—A late London paper contains a letter from Hungary, under the date of August, which states that the country had been deluged, by an almost incessant rain from July 6th. On August 4, at Gyongyos, the weather appeared to clear up, but at mid-day the sun became completely obscured, as if by an eclipse, and from the ensuing tempest arose a globe of fire, and five minutes afterwards a globe of the same description appeared in the west, and moving as a centre of attraction, both united in the zenith, in a serpentine course, broke against the mountains, with a tremendous explosion. It was the commencement of a rain that inundated the whole country, followed by a succession of calm and pestilence.

On Monday evening last, a fight occurred at Providence, between Rogers and Sherman belonging to two Cape Ann vessels, on one of the wharves when a young man by the name of Rogers received advice from Sherman to ascertain the cause of the noise. Rogers went to ascertain the cause of the noise, and instantly received a severe blow from Sherman, which knocked him down. Rogers then got up and struck Sherman a severe blow with his fist, which knocked him down, and he struck his head against the wharf, which caused his death. Rogers was arrested and committed to prison, to await the decision of the coroner's inquest.

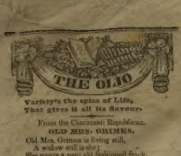
The Governor of Illinois has issued a proclamation, announcing that the election for governor, lieutenant governor, and members of the legislature, will be held on the first Monday in August next.

The Newburyport Herald states that a violent assault, with intent to murder, was committed on Wednesday on Mr. E. Noyes by Mr. S. Kimball, both young men of that place. Mr. Noyes, it appears, was paying his addresses to a young lady, to whom Mr. Kimball was also attached, and the latter, in a fit of jealousy, attacked Mr. Noyes, as above stated, and inflicted upon him a severe wound in the head, with a knife. Mr. Noyes is very dangerously ill.

The Cleveland Herald says that a violent assault was committed on Mr. Hinsdale, a merchant of that city, on the night of the 10th inst. by two men, who entered his store, and after knocking him down, beat him with a cane in a most unmerciful manner. Mr. Hinsdale, it is said, had offended one of the villains by refusing to credit him for goods.

Mr. Kay, a respectable farmer of Bucks county, Pa. was killed by the accidental discharge of a gun, on the 18th inst. while in the act of getting over a fence. The gun was discharged by the muzzle striking the ground, and the contents passed through the body of the unfortunate man.

Mr. Ellis



Variety's the spice of Life,
That gives it all its flavour.

From the Cincinnati Republican.

OLD MRS. GIBLINS.

Old Mrs. Grimes is living still,
A widow still is she;
She wears a cap and fashioned frock,
A coarse nor'west on be.

She's short in home-spun socks shewed
The scantlin's of the town;
Those coarse enough pon her sleeves
To make a sack gown.

Although she's poor, she mostly pour's
Her's scarce her self expended;
Her dress a cover drags the ground,
Nor ever shows her hands.

She every Sunday goes to church,
Nor sleeps, nor slumbers there;
Her eyes are of the strictest kind,
Save one for Sunday's wear.

She often says "she hopes always
To meet her blessed dear"!
She rents a cot at fifteen pounds,
And pigsty every year.

She always was industrious,
And runs now lower's
She's called by all the neighbours round,
"Good Old Mrs. Giblin's."

Some of the counsellors at the bar in France, talking very loudly during a trial, M. D'Harley, the President, said: "My fellow gentlemen, you must remember that we are only more than three gentlemen who are assembled, and we are more agreeable in three gentlemen who listen."

A judge was trying a prisoner accused of felony; while delivering his charge, and minutely detailing the finding and concealing of the stolen goods, the jury and the counsel fell fast asleep! The sheriffs who had charge of the prisoner, being aware of the custom of the court, that who happened to be awake, and apprehending the prisoner might escape, made a noise with the keys of the sheriffs. "Never mind," said the Judge—"as the case is now in my hands, I shall not trouble the jury to sum up—for the prisoner is not asleep now!"

It appears by a calculation made by the printer of Bonaparte's edition of Rollin's Ancient History, a large page of that work, text and notes, contains twenty-six hundred and fifty-eight pearls of labour, and the contents of a sheet, amount to forty-two thousand eight hundred and eighty—the number of pearls of labour which are successively cause a blunder! With this curious fact before us, the accurate state of our paper, as to grounds, is to be admired, and errors ought more freely to be pardoned than the hasty observation of the first hasty eye of certain critics less allowed.—Sheffield Iris.

A FRESH SUPPLY OF CONUNDRUMS.

Why is an ugly woman like a pretty one? Because she can miss in the water! Because it is sure-loud.

Why is a coconut resting upon the ground the reputed poverty of Hain? Because it is a dark rare.

Why is a lieutenant, with only a limb in fashion, like a disappointed office seeker? Because he has not got a for relation.

Why is a deliverance from an unwelcome intruder likely to be of considerable importance? Because it is a good rid desire.

Why is an ignorant legislator (if any such there be) like what is most shallow on this seaside in dubuque, like a sick man on the recovery? Because he is rising to convey into consciousness.

Why is the question, how second stone is the rear of a religious female, who lately lived to the ages of a centipede? Because it is a con-undrum.

What sense is there in deer's ride? Why, in directing his mother's attention to a strange animal? A doe-ma-ka de-er.

Why is the Atlantic, compared with the Mediterranean, like the legal requirements of a man's property? Because it is a law sea (a-sea).

Why is the produce of an Irish farm like the whisk of a hare? Because it is part ai—parcel.

Why is a lieutenant like a thief? Because he is conducting a universe? Because he derives his principal support from the fellows under command.—Punch.

A HEY IMPERTINENT QUESTION.—A certain free-and-easy, during a summer's tour in Ireland, visited caves-lately and one of the guides, who accompanied him, seemed to be quite at the task of following his salary of some seventeen shillings a week, with questions.

In the evening, pursuant to announcement, the great many came, and Mister H. H. Jones, our guide, as well known, one of the great points is the order given to the Guards set for the purpose, to prevent the Ex-it of anybody.

"All with his hand! So much for Buckingham!"

The intelled subdern corrected to be the last of those successions who succeeded to the throne of Lancaster misfortune; and following his whose arms was,

"Buckingham's duty is fairly executed and taken,
And he himself wandered away alone,
No one knows whither."

hardly sequencing King Richard's dreadful poison, saying:

"My lord, the Duke of Buckingham is taken!"

and then, casually heeding his fate-finger like a pistol at the face of the astonished tyrant, added, with profound self-satisfaction,

"And we've swept his hand off!"

WOMEN THE SECRET OF ALL EVIL.—It is an article of faith with the orthodox in the eastern countries, that no one can ever place at the head of affairs in any the first cause. "When a shef" a Ralph was always in the habit of saying when he was about to make a speech to his, however severe or however trivial. His intendants received his orders in silence, and he was never known to refuse from a scaffold when working at his palaces, and had broken his neck. "What is the matter?" the astonished sages; who all the Ralph deigned to grant. It was all in a moment of ill-humour, and during an hour of labourer. "Bring me instant intelligence what woman caused this accident, or I will have your heads!" exclaimed the Prince. In an hour the active spies, drawn recruited, and prepared, were following the scent. "O wise and wonderful Prince!" "Well, who else is concerned in it?" "Why, the Princess Zuleika was seated on the scaffold he was attracted by the beauty of one of your Highness's fairest ladies in waiting, and from her his balance and fell to the ground." "O you hear now," said the Prince, "you scoundrels, you are in error, without a woman in some way being an instrument."—Captain Skinner's Excursions in Tartary.

CAUSES OF THE LONDON.—A ludicrous scene occurred being exhibited in the old church in the parish of Sunday before last. We give it as a special admonition to London to wear more than three gentlemen who are asleep, it would be more agreeable to those gentlemen who listen.

A judge was trying a prisoner accused of felony; while delivering his charge, and minutely detailing the finding and concealing of the stolen goods, the jury and the counsel fell fast asleep! The sheriffs who had charge of the prisoner, being aware of the custom of the court, that who happened to be awake, and apprehending the prisoner might escape, made a noise with the keys of the sheriffs. "Never mind," said the Judge—"as the case is now in my hands, I shall not trouble the jury to sum up—for the prisoner is not asleep now!"

It appears by a calculation made by the printer of Bonaparte's edition of Rollin's Ancient History, a large page of that work, text and notes, contains twenty-six hundred and fifty-eight pearls of labour, and the contents of a sheet, amount to forty-two thousand eight hundred and eighty—the number of pearls of labour which are successively cause a blunder! With this curious fact before us, the accurate state of our paper, as to grounds, is to be admired, and errors ought more freely to be pardoned than the hasty observation of the first hasty eye of certain critics less allowed.—Sheffield Iris.

A FRESH SUPPLY OF CONUNDRUMS.

Why is an ugly woman like a pretty one? Because she can miss in the water! Because it is sure-loud.

Why is a coconut resting upon the ground the reputed poverty of Hain? Because it is a dark rare.

Why is a lieutenant, with only a limb in fashion, like a disappointed office seeker? Because he has not got a for relation.

Why is a deliverance from an unwelcome intruder likely to be of considerable importance? Because it is a good rid desire.

Why is an ignorant legislator (if any such there be) like what is most shallow on this seaside in dubuque, like a sick man on the recovery? Because he is rising to convey into consciousness.

Why is the question, how second stone is the rear of a religious female, who lately lived to the ages of a centipede? Because it is a con-undrum.

What sense is there in deer's ride? Why, in directing his mother's attention to a strange animal? A doe-ma-ka de-er.

Why is the Atlantic, compared with the Mediterranean, like the legal requirements of a man's property? Because it is a law sea (a-sea).

Why is the produce of an Irish farm like the whisk of a hare? Because it is part ai—parcel.

Why is a lieutenant like a thief? Because he is conducting a universe? Because he derives his principal support from the fellows under command.—Punch.

A HEY IMPERTINENT SPECIMEN.—A certain free-and-easy, during a summer's tour in Ireland, visited caves-lately and one of the guides, who accompanied him, seemed to be quite at the task of following his salary of some seventeen shillings a week